SATURDAY, OCTOBER 22. 1737.

Cavan, October 8.

AST Tuesday Mary Anderson, who was condemned last Assizes for the Murder of her own Child, was burnt pursuant to her Sentence.

Coothill, Off. 8. At Stradoen, a little Market about 7 Miles from this, happened a Quarrel between Thomas Armstrong and some Neighbours; Mr. Brady came in to make Peace amongst them, but in the Fray Armstrong slabb'd him, and he languished till Yesterday, when he died of the Wound, not far from the Place where he received it. Our Correspondent does not say what is become of Armstrong.

Enniskillen, Off. 8. Last Thursday James M'Thomas and James Halfpen were Executed, the one for Horse-Stealing, of which he declared at the Gallows he was innocent, and had always liv'd honestly; the other for Cow-Stealing, confess'd the Fact.

A PROCLAMATION by the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor of the City of Dublin: For apprehending all idle Vagabonds, and vagrant Beggars, &c.

WHEREAS great Numbers of idle and vagrant Beggars of both Sexes, who mostly come from the Country, still continue to strol about the Streets, so that this City is become the common Receptacle of Vagabonds, pretending to be miserable, as well as of Objects disfigured and frightful, tho' repeated Attempts have been made to remove this Nuisance, by sending such Idlers and Vagrants into the Workhouse, or Bridewell, to be employ'd there in proper Labour. And whereas the Court of Assistants of the Government of the Workhouse of this City, at their Meeting at the Tholsel, on Thursday the 6th of this Month, have undertaken to provide Materia's suitable to the Condition of those who shall be sent into that House, as Logwood and Hemp, for those who are sturdy and able to work, and Junk, and other slight Materials, for those whose Strength is not equal to such Labour; and have withal undertaken to provide such Accommodation of Lodging and Diet as the Generality of labouring People provide for themselves; the Concern of these Gentlemen being no other than to reclaim an idle slothful Generation to Industry and Labour, and to reform a vicious and dissolute People into some Sense of Virtue, under the Regulations and Instructions of a House erected and directed to those most useful Purposes.

And whereas it is apprehended, that former Endeavours to clear the Streets of those idle Vagrants, have been render'd ineffectual, either because the seizing and taking them up, hath not been equally executed with Strictness in some Parts of this City; or the Execution in all Parts hath not been sufficiently constant; or that it has been hindered by bold and disorderly Mobs; or Persons taken up have been released upon too slight Securities; so that they have returned from the Labour of the House to beg again in the Streets; and as it is apprehended, that by all or some of these Means former Endeavours have been rendered ineffectual: In Order therefore to have the same strictly executed for the future, I do hereby require and command all Constables of this City, Beadles and Constables of the several Parishes of this City, to seize upon, take up, carry to, and lodge in the Workhouse erected for the Use of this City, all Beggars, of both Sexes, and all Ages, who shall be found begging and asking Alms in any Part of this City, except those badged by the several Parishes, and all Shoe-boys and News-boys; there to be kept at such Labour as the Governors shall appoint, from the 10th Day of this Instant October: And that the Constables, &c. shall take their Rounds on Tuesday and Thursday in every Week, and likewise return to Me the Names of such Inhabitants of this City as lodge or entertain such Beggars, &c. And as such Beggars, &c. are injurious to honest Shopkeepers, and Dealers in Trade, and offensive to all those who are concerned for our common Prosperity, Peace, and good Order; and as the Law has directed and enabled every House-Keeper and Inhabitant of this City, to command the Beadle or Constable of his Parish, under Penalty of Forty Shillings, to seize and take up such Beggars, I require that every such House-Keeper and Inhabitant, will give their Assistance to the Execution of this good Design, and return to Me the Names of such Beadle, or Constable, as shall refuse to obey their Commands, in Execution of the same.

Given at the Tholsel of the City of Dublin, the 7th Day of October, 1737.

WILLIAM WALKER.

On Saturday Evening was decently interr'd at St. Michael's Church, the Corpse of David King, Esq; one of our Sheriffs Peers, and a noted Goldsmith in Skinner-Row.

The same Day died suddenly Mr. Edward Urton, Clerk of the Markets of Enniskillen. Mr. William Gibb is sworn Provost of that Corporation.

Edinburgh, Off. 13. Yesterday the Magistrates sentenced Mr. Paris, Taylor, to pay a Fine of 5 l. Sterl. to be 8 Days imprisoned, and to find Security for his future good Behaviour. It was proved, that he was accessory to the Old Kirk Riot the first Sunday of this Month; and particularly, that he called out to give the Minister Eggs to clear up his Voice.

Tuesday being the Anniversary of his Majesty's Coronation, the Flag was displayed on the Castle, and at Noon thrice 7 Great Guns were fired. The Magistrates ordered the Musick Bells to play, and at 6 at Night they were succeeded by the Great Bells. The Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Town-Council met at the Burrow-Room in the Evening, where they drank the Healths of the King, the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, Princess Augusta, the Duke of Cumberland, the Prince of Orange, the Princess of Orange, each of the Princesses, with all suitable Healths; and afterwards repaired to the Tavern to repeat the aforesaid Healths. Brigadier General Guilt also solemnized the Day at his House in Abbey-hill.

A certain Minister in East-Lothian sent lately his Maid-servant to this City with an Order to receive some Money for him; and at the same Time she was charged to buy some Trifles for her Mistress. All which the trusty Girl obeyed. But on her Return she was attacked at the Figget Whins by a Rogue on Horseback (who had Intelligence of her Message) demanding her Money: The Girl told him, that rather than deliver up her Master's Money, she'd part with her Life: Upon which he got hold of her; but she struggling manfully, got out of his Hands; and taking the Napkin wherein were the Trifles she had bought in Town, threw it a good Way among the Whins, bidding the D---- take him and it both. The Rogue immediately alighted, fastens the Bridle with his Cane in the Ground, left the Maid crying, and steps to fetch the Cash from among the Whins: But in the mean Time the Girl seeing her Opportunity, claps her Foot in the Stirrup, gets alitide, and bidding him Adieu, rides off. The Horse having been since proclaimed, and no Person owning him, was sold for her Use, who so well deserved it.

Somerham, Off. 2. The continual and heavy Rains which fell from Wednesday last to this Morning, have made great Devastation in these Parts: All the Meadows and Roads about St. Ives, Huntingdon, Hemingsford, &c. are laid to very deep under Water, that there is hardly any passing from Town to Town without a Boat. The Gravel-way from Earworth to the Hermitage has been overflow'd in such a manner as to render it unpassable for a Horse without swimming. But the greatest Loss is sustained by the Femmen, whose Washes, their chief Dependence, are all a bright Sea from the Hermitage quite down to Salters Load. Very great Damage has likewise been done to their Oats, some of which are yet standing, and others in Wads among the Waters: Even Grunty-Fen, though lying pretty high near Ely, has not escap'd, which produced a very good Crop of Oats, many Acres of which are yet out in the Field, and not like to be got in fit for any other Use than Dung. By the Judgment and Care of the present Officers the Banks and Mills are in such good Order that no considerable Breaches have been made by the Floods, which otherwise would have drowned many Thousands of Acres more.

Canterbury, Off. 19. Last Sunday was committed to his Majesty's Gaol in St. Dunstan's near this City, one Henry Gourley, charg'd with robbing the House of Mr. Nicholas Spurning, at the George at Boughton under the Blean, of 70 odd Pounds in Money: 29 Pounds, Part of the said Money, was found upon the said Gourley when taken; and 35 Pounds more of the said Money was paid to Mr. Spurning at Sandwich, by a Person in whom the Robber had intrusted the said 35 Pounds.

For some Time past we have had almost continual Showers of Rain, and Yesterday Morning about 6 o'Clock, the River Stour began to swell to that Degree, as to lay Part of several Streets of this City under Water, as well as all the neighbouring Meadows. Such a Flood has not been known for about these 30 Years before. We expect to hear of great Damages occasion'd thereby. 'Tis reckon'd the Waters were at their Height about 9, and that they began for to abate about 1 in the Afternoon; and that they rose about 4 Foot higher than usual.

Extract of a particular Letter from Paris, dated October 14. O. S.

All the Letters from Vienna, and the Frontiers of Sweden and Poland, confirm the total Defeat of General Lascey's Army, with very circumstantial Particulars, in Substance as follow:

'The Captain Batha finding that General Lascey had shut himself up with his Army in the Palms Meotis, cut off his Retreat, and inclosed him in such a manner between the Armies of the Turks and Tartars, that 'twas impossible for him to get out. At the same time the Captain Batha landed the Forces that were just arrived from Asia, which being join'd to the Turks and Tartars, fell upon the Russians, consisting of 40,000 Men under General Lascey, and attack'd them on several Sides at once with such Fury, that the latter not being able to stand the Shock of such a desperate Onset, fell in such Heaps one over another, that Half of the Army was cut in Pieces, and the rest fled before their Pursuers.'

The same Extract adds, that they have Advice also by Letters from Vienna, that the Count de Bonneval has actually laid Siege to Hermanstadt, the Capital of Transylvania, and that Count Wallis is retired into the Town to defend it.

They write from Paris, that Catrou the Jesuit, well known by the Learned Tracts which he has published, Extract of a Letter from Cork, dated Oct 14. 1737.

By the Arran of Liverpoole, Capt. Hughes, from Monferrat, came Letters of the 9th and 10th of September, which give an Account of a most dreadful Hurricane all over the Leeward Islands, which began the 27th of August last, that most of the Vessels in the Harbours drove to Sea, and several of them lost and overet; several Plantation Mills and other Sugar Works, entirely destroy'd: 'Tis computed the Damage done at Monferrat only, to be about $5,000 l.

By the Monmouth of Bristol, which lately arrived at Plymouth from St. Eustatia for Holland, we have an Account that the said Ship was forced to Sea by a Hurricane the 27th of August last, before she was fully loaded, and that he saw the Roebuck Man of War, station'd at the Leeward Islands, without her Masts.

This being the Birth-day of her Royal Highness the Princess of Orange, who then enters into the 29th Year of her Age, their Majesties will receive the Compliments of the Nobility, Foreign Ministers, and other Persons of Distinction on that Occasion.
